Foreword

Education may be defined as the pursuit, the dissemination, and the accumulation of knowledge. But that is not enough. Since knowledge is power to be used either for good or for evil, to kill or to make alive, to save or to destroy, it follows that the educational process must do something to provide a proper motive. To inform a man is not enough--in fact, it may be dangerous. Man's motives must be made righteous.

Here is where CHRISTIAN education comes in. Someone has said that the pursuit of knowledge is a RELIGIOUS duty. Let us not forget that the brightest spots in human history are found in those periods when religion and learning were in the closest bonds. Those bonds need to be strengthened in our day. We do well to reflect that the most creative periods of the church were those marked by the ministry of men whose hearts were warm with religious fervor and whose intellects were illumined with knowledge.

Marie Strong

In Dedication

Men are needed who seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness. Business men of the world seek first to make money. God's business men must seek first to make a life of usefulness to God and humanity. The world's teachers aim for the job with the highest salary and position. God's teachers seek to love and serve their fellow men. The world's physicians and technologists seek for fame and salary. God's physicians seek first of all to bring men into right relationship with God, for lasting cures come no other way. God's men seek to solve the great social problems of poverty, prejudice, and illness of every kind, knowing full well that "he who loves God should love his brother also."

Marie Strong

1. "Going up or coming down?"
2. "Beautiful day to study!"
3. "Right in the palm of my hand!"
4. "No! No! No!"
5. "Dearly Beloved. . ."
6. "Studying hard, Lottie?"

"An Evening Prayer"

Religion Emphasis Week

We were inspired by Bro. Boyer's dynamic messages.

We anticipated the spiritual guidance provided us by our leaders.

Religious Life Committee

Tom E. Smith, Chairman, Barbara Harris, Ruth Stephenson, Lovell Sorrell, John Washington

Religious Emphasis Week, morning prayer meetings, singspirations, dorm prayer groups--these are among the activities sponsored by the Religious Life Committee. For the first time this year the committee is sponsoring an all-school program, plus helping to provide a picture of Christ for the Student Lounge. School worship services before vacations, all night prayer vigils are an endless round, but a thrilling and rewarding task. With the students' co-operation and God's guidance the purpose of the Religious Life Committee, increasing and strengthening the kingdom of God, comes nearer fulfillment.

This year the club has extended its activities in both service and social functions. Among the high lights of the year were the overnight hike to Mounds Park, the formal, contribution of Thanksgiving baskets to needy families, annual presentation of a free-throw trophy to the basketball player with the highest free-throw shooting average in regular season play, and improvement of the student parking lot.

The members of the IV-C Club donated their time selling Christmas trees and in turn used the profits for Christmas baskets for needy families and scholarships for bringing worthy students to Anderson College.

The way the Sachem Club develops leadership is by participating in many activities throughout the school year. One of the newer interest clubs on campus is the Women's Recreational Association. The purpose of this organization is to promote good sportsmanship, interest and skill in athletics for women.

Every Thursday night the girls meet in the gym and have a program. We have intercollegiate basketball games with other colleges such as Taylor, Earlham, Hanover, Butler, and Indiana Central. There are play-days at other schools, and intramural play among teams and clubs.

Our social events are all-day hikes, swimming parties, and some field trips. It is a club whereby all can come and join the fun in sports such as archery, badminton, tennis, bowling, basketball, hiking, and other sports.

We are fellow-laborers of the Kingdom, each according to his talents and calling. Some of us are preachers; some are teachers.

And some are publishers. Our duties are different.

But our objective is the same. A world turned from evil.

A world acknowledging Christ and obeying His precepts.
We who are publishers are responsible for a vital link in the chain of Christian witness. If this link is to hold, we must use our every resource in forging it.
Working, hand-in-hand with other Christian agencies, we cannot, for a moment, slacken our effort.
One weak link will impair the strength of the whole.
